One-day Itinerary

Dresden, Moritzburg & Meissen

BRIEF DESCRIPTION

About ten million visitors a year come and see Dresden, affectionately nicknamed Saxony's »Florence on the Elbe River«, and are fascinated by its world-famous touristic attractions.

During such a visit, you must not miss out on one of Germany's most well-known Baroque buildings - the Dresden Zwinger. As a splendid venue for court festivities, Augustus the Strong had this Baroque piece of art created in the early 18th century by architect Matthaeus Daniel Poepelmann and sculptor Balthasar Permoser. Today, the Dresden Zwinger accommodates museums of world renown and is a stage for music and theatre performances. From the Saxon state capital, your trip will take you to its surroundings. Moritzburg Castle, once Augustus the Strong's pleasure castle, greets you from amidst an artificially created lake district. From a horse-drawn carriage, one can explore the expansive pond and park grounds. The Little Pheasant Castle is situated at a walking distance of only a few minutes, surrounded by green meadows and cozy forests.

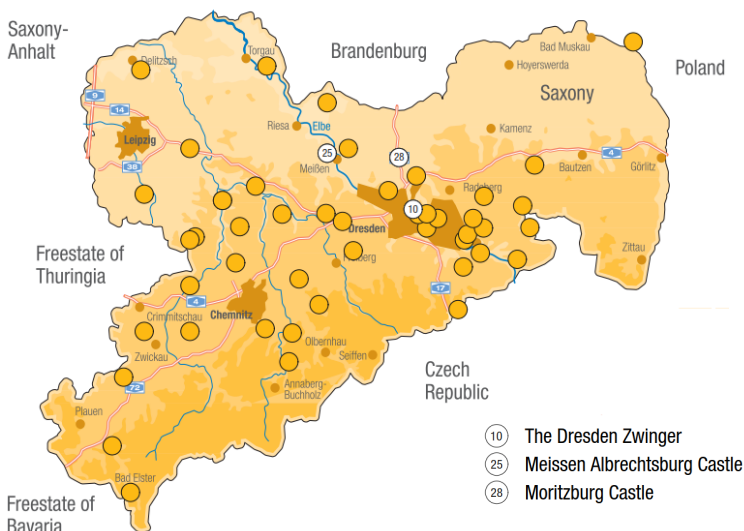

Participate in a guided tour and discover Saxony's tiniest royal palace, a paradise in a nutshell. Then you will continue on your trip to Meissen. Late Gothic Albrechtsburg Castle towers majestically over the picturesque Elbe River valley. Erected in the 15th century, it is deemed Germany's oldest palace. Come and learn why Meissen Albrechtsburg Castle is regarded a trendsetter and follow up on the traces of the »White Gold«, the Meissen china. On a comfortable voyage back to Dresden, you will certainly pass the day in review.

The Dresden Zwinger

A Garden of Eden on Earth

BRIEF DESCRIPTION

It was Augustus the Strong who had this Baroque piece of art created in the early 17th century as a magnificent venue for courtly festivities. Today, the Dresden Zwinger accommodates museums of world renown and is the stage for music and theater performances. Take a stroll along the Arched Gallery, through the Nymphs' Bath or the French Pavilion. Originally designed as an orangery, history comes alive again at the authentic location. Back in the past, a few hundred Italian orange tree saplings were given a home in one of Germany's most beautiful orangeries. In order to rededicate the Dresden Zwinger to its original purpose, about 80 bitter orange saplings were returned to the Zwinger in May 2017. Come and experience the new splendor having the Dresden Zwinger irradiate in Mediterranean flair again.
